Synopsis of Decisions Rendered at the Tyler Sixing of the Supreme Court.

Miller et al. vs. Moss et al., appeal from Henderson. James Miller, with his family, settled upon and improved the land in controversy, which was in the Missouri Pacific railroad reserva-tion, in 1855 and occupied it until 1892, when he went juto th army. Since that time the family have not occupied it. Patent issued to his heirs only 16, 1883. Held, that the issuance of the patent is prima facie evidence that the provision of the act of August 26, 1856, (P. D. 5038-5048) providing for the sale and settle-ment of lands within that reservation were fully complied with, and that it is con-clusive of the right of Miller's heirs as clusive of the right of Miller's heirs as against all persons who do not show some right having an existence prior to its issuance. While the settlement was made under the provisions of the act of August, 1856, which required the payment to the state of fifty cents per acre, the claim is a pre-emption within the meaning of the act of March 24, 1871, (P. D. 7052) and after the passage of the latter act payment of the fifty cents was unnecessary. Where there are more number of cattle are being shipped out of the Indian Territory, and thrown on the market on account of the recent action of the government."

McBride, et al. vs. Bauguss et al., appeal from Cass. Trespass to try title by appellants claiming through execution sale of the land as the property of Bauguss. At the time of the sale Bauguss neld the land under bond for title from one Blades. Part of the purchase money had been paid by Banguss. The balance of the purchase money not having been paid, Blades afterward conveyed the land to Mooring and Lyon, who are defendants below. Held, that the Interest acquired by the saie under execution was but the right to complete the title to the land by payment of the purchase money to Blades, and this not having been done or ten-dered appellant could not recover the land as against Blades of parties claiming by conveyance from him even with no-tice of appellant's claim. The subse-quent conveyance by Blades was a recis-sion of the previous contract, which he had a right to do. Where land is pur-chased for the wife with her separate chased for the wife with her separate means, a purchaser under execution against the husband acquires no title even if at the time he had no notice of her interest, if the only value paid is credit upon the execution. 61 Tex., 648.
